Love is a fundamental human right that is recognized and protected by various international organizations and treaties. Yet, it continues to be under threat in many parts of the world.

“

We are delighted to declare February 19th as National Hickey Day, a day that recognizes the power of love and reminds us that love has no boundaries.”

Sven Patzer

National Hickey Day aims to raise awareness of the importance of love and promote the rights of all humans to love freely and without prejudice.

"We are delighted to declare February 19th as National Hickey Day, a day that recognizes the power of love and reminds us that love has no boundaries," said Sven Patzer, Founder of National Hickey day and Hickey Hack: "We want to emphasize the significance of love, acceptance, and equality in our society and encourage everyone to

It's a day to remind everyone that love should be celebrated, cherished, and not discriminated against.

As we celebrate the first-ever National Hickey Day, it's important to reflect on the progress made towards promoting love and equality. However, we must also acknowledge that many individuals and communities continue to face discrimination, intolerance, and inequality.

National Hickey Day is a day to show support and stand together for all those who have faced discrimination or prejudice in their lives. It's a day to recognize that everyone has the right to love and be loved, regardless of gender, sexual orientation, race, or religion.

To celebrate National Hickey Day, communities and individuals are encouraged to express love and affection to those around them. From holding hands and sharing hugs to giving and receiving hickies, this day is all about spreading love and positivity.

As we celebrate National Hickey Day, let's remember that love is a powerful force that can bring change and create a brighter future for all. Let's continue to work towards a world where everyone is free to love and be loved without fear of discrimination or prejudice.

National Hickey Day is a day to celebrate love and equality, a day to remember that love knows no boundaries, and a day to remind everyone that love should be cherished and celebrated. Join us on this day to celebrate the power of love and promote equality for all.
