Because of the increasing interest from American firms in recent times, we felt it was the right time to formally introduce ourselves on the circuit.”

Linkology Founder and Co-Director Jason Brooks

“We’ve captured much of the UK market and for the last few years, we’ve been facilitating increasing levels of interest from across the pond. As our services and offering has expanded, we’re setting our sights on increasing our presence and clients in the US,” Linkology Founder and Co-Director Jason Brooks said.

“Because of the increasing interest from American firms in recent times, we felt it was the right time to formally introduce ourselves on the circuit. The people we spoke to at the Las Vegas event were impressed with our focus on quality, relevance and honesty, with a keenness to use our services,” he added.

Linkology: A Link-Building Agency in Demand

Linkology has rapidly expanded in recent years, as more companies than ever use its quality link-building services to get ahead online, growing its client and employee numbers as well as starting a number of new, affiliated companies.

The new offshoot enterprises include digital PR agency Reachology, technical SEO agency Siteologists and Wordologists, which specialises in copy for websites – all of which come under the Ologyholdings umbrella.

Brooks said that with the combined expertise of his companies, clients in the United States stood to benefit from an expert level of services to help them leap ahead of the competition with service bolt-ons to suit all budgets and custom metrics to show ROI.

UK Ahead of the Link-Building Curve

Linkology Sales and Co-Director George Blandford said American businesses wishing to boost their online presence were increasingly looking to UK agencies for their expertise in building the kind of quality links they needed.

“We found at Affiliate Summit West 2023 that there were many American business owners and marketers coming up to us seeking a link-building service they cannot seem to get at home,” he said.

“We are happy to provide ours and we’re confident in the quality of service that we offer. Our focus has always been on the bigger picture, not a single transaction, so we offer free audits and trials to front-load that added value. The industry has been quite transactional, but we like to get into the details to make the gains sustainable and comprehensive.”
