Global Crisis. There is a Way Out.

The world is facing a devastating reality, one that has the potential to completely destroy our planet, yet most people are unaware of the looming danger. A group of independent volunteers, scientists, and researchers from 180 countries have been studying the issue for 27 years and have developed an interdisciplinary approach that no other institution or organization in the world is able to perform.

“

To our regret, over 27 years of research, we have never made a single mistake in our forecasts. Currently, every passing day only confirms the accuracy of our mathematical model.”
