Trending Tanks Market Trend

The Pentagon is increasingly implementing robot tanks in the military for the purpose of high security, which is likely to be a major trend in the tank market. Robotic tanks are autonomous robots designed for military applications such as transport, search and rescue, and others. These tanks are equipped with guns, a rocket arm, and a missile arm. In January 2020, the USA gave a contract to QinetiQ North America to build four robotic combat vehicle-light prototypes and another contract to Textron to build four robotic combat vehicle-medium prototypes. In July 2020, Russia prepared a robot tank, Derivatsiya-PVO, which is a self-propelled artillery tasked with an anti-air mission. Russia revealed that it had combat-tested its Uran-9 robot tank in Syria, which has a gun and missile armament. Such developments in military tanks are emerging as a trend in the tank market.
