Trending Domiciliary Insurance Market Trend

The companies in the domiciliary insurance market are focusing on the launch of the home treatment programs for overseas patients. The home treatment program provides healthcare services to patients at their home. It takes place when a therapist provides counseling in a person's home. For example, in September 2022, Allianz Care Australia, an Australia based a medical assistance and insurance company, launched a home treatment program for overseas student health insurance members who require cancer treatment in Australia. The program enables members to receive cancer treatment at home instead of a hospital, improving the lives of overseas students and providing another option for persons requiring cancer treatment. As part of the program, Allianz Care members will receive repeat cycle treatment, including chemotherapy, immunotherapy, chronic illness infusions, and other supportive therapies commonly prescribed for cancer treatment.
