Collaborative Divorce Denton County

Collaborative Divorce is a more peaceful process for resolving family law disputes where two parties work with lawyers, mental health professionals and financial specialists to craft divorce agreements that are based on their individual needs. Decisions are made by the couple without going to court or involving a judge or other third-party decision maker. The Collaborative Divorce process, as advocated for by members of the International Academy of Collaborative Professionals (IACP), has been nominated for the 2023 Nobel Peace Prize for transforming the way families resolve conflict.

Interested parties should visit divorcewithrespectweek.com to find a participating professional and to schedule a free 30-minute consultation. North Texas divorce professionals will meet privately with potential clients during an informal virtual meeting to answer questions and discuss their options for divorce.

Collaborative Divorce Denton County believes that the Collaborative Divorce process is a better option for many families because it allows couples to effectively co-parent and end their marriage without destroying the family's relationships or financial estate. Its members have local offices, are familiar with Denton County Courts, are familiar with the litigation process and share a similar philosophy. It is also affiliated with The International Academy of Collaborative Professionals. Learn more at collaborativedivorcedentoncounty.org.
