Visión General del Mercado (2018-2028)

- CAGR del Periodo de Pronóstico (2023-2028): 3,90%

El mercado de envasado de leche en América Latina está impulsado por varios factores, como el crecimiento de la industria láctea en la región. En 2021, el mercado adquirió el valor de USD 2,50 mil millones, lo que demuestra el aumento de la demanda de soluciones de envasado de leche. Además, el aumento de la población, el aumento de los ingresos disponibles y el cambio en las preferencias de los consumidores hacia productos de conveniencia y listos para consumir también han contribuido al crecimiento del mercado de envasado de leche en América Latina.

Por otra parte, las iniciativas gubernamentales para mejorar la seguridad alimentaria y las normas de higiene han dado lugar a normativas más estrictas sobre el envasado de la leche, lo que ha creado una demanda de soluciones de envasado innovadoras y sostenibles. La creciente concienciación sobre el impacto medioambiental de los residuos de envases también ha impulsado la demanda de soluciones de envasado ecológicas en el mercado de envasado de leche en América Latina. La introducción de nuevos materiales y tecnologías, como los materiales biodegradables y el envasado aséptico, también ha estimulado la expansión del mercado de envasado de leche en la región, al ofrecer alternativas más eficaces, económicas y sostenibles.

Market Trends

The milk packaging market in Latin America is currently being influenced by a number of trends. One notable trend is the mounting demand for environmentally friendly packaging solutions that reduce the impact of packaging waste on the environment. Consequently, there has been an increase in the use of biodegradable materials, as well as the implementation of recycling programs and sustainable packaging practices.

Another trend that is gaining traction is the popularity of aseptic packaging, which employs advanced technologies to sterilize milk and preserve its freshness without refrigeration. This has spurred the development of novel packaging formats like pouches and cartons that are lightweight and convenient for on-the-go consumption. Some manufacturers are offering personalized packaging designs that allow consumers to personalize the packaging with their own images, logos, or messages, providing a distinctive and memorable product experience.
