Everyone deserves an opportunity to succeed regardless of their neurological makeup.”

Gina Grandchamp-Milan

“It is my mission to create a safe space for people living with neurodiversity,” says founder Gina Grandchamp-Milan. “At NES we are here for those who need us most; empowering our members with resources and guidance so they may reach their full potential.” NES provides quality support, training and programming that is accessible to those with neurological challenges that qualify to join this unique society.

Neurodiversity or neurodivergence refers to variations in the human brain and cognition in each individual, such as in the areas of sociability, learning, attention, mood, and other mental functions. Neurodiverse people include those with conditions such as: autistic spectrum disorder (ASD), attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), developmental speech disorders, dyslexia, dysgraphia, dyspraxia, dyscalculia, dysnomia, intellectual disability, and Tourette syndrome. Males are more likely to be identified and diagnosed with neurodiverse conditions, but sadly, females are more likely to be missed when diagnosing learning disabilities and developmental disorders. This is something that NES is aware of and pays close attention to.

Neurodiveristy in the United States is more common than we think - and unemployment rates are extremely high for neurodivergent adults running at least as high as 30-40% which is three times the rate for people with a disability, and eight times the rate for people without disabilities.

Gina Grandchamp-Milan believes that "everyone deserves an opportunity to succeed regardless of their neurological makeup." By joining NES individuals can gain the knowledge and tools they need to empower themselves both personally and professionally.

NES members have access to innovative programs such as the Social Emotional Learning Club (SELC), which helps participants develop self-awareness, self-management, relationship skills and responsible decision making through interactive activities and lessons. Other programs include sensory integration therapy groups designed specifically for individuals in the autism spectrum; life coaching sessions designed to help members achieve their personal goals; peer mentoring which pairs members
