TruService Community Federal Credit Union starts ITIN Lending

TruService's ITIN Lending will benefit those individuals that pay taxes not with a social security number, but rather with an ITIN, which stands for an Individual Tax Identification Number. Historically, these individuals have been vulnerable to excessive interest rate loans and predatory lenders. CEO and President of TruService Community Federal Credit Union, Linda Jeffery says, “we are excited to offer ITIN Lending, so we can provide our community with fair and responsible financial products, such as mortgages, loans, refinancing, etc.”

TruService, which has a bilingual staff, sees this as a monumental advancement for the underserved and underbanked community in Arkansas. Through ITIN Lending, TruService Community Federal Credit Union will significantly be able to help many undocumented tax paying individuals achieve homeownership.

While some financial institutions offer a variance of ITIN Lending, TruService will be one of the first to offer homeownership at fair interest rates for mortgages and normal terms. Andres Acosta, who is the Community Development Coordinator and one of the bilingual team members at TruService says, "we are here and ready to help the ITIN community with home ownership. Call my cell 870-243-1514 to set up an appointment."

TruService is an accredited CDFI or a Community Development Financial Institution. They are focused on helping the underserved or unbanked with their financial needs. They regularly do financial educational seminars, hold workshops to help the underserved and unbanked population achieve financial wellness.

This latest ITIN Lending program allows TruService Community Federal Credit Union to continue its mission by serving a larger segment of the community. TruService's motto is "Here For You. Here For The Community."
