Celebrating Holi in Vrindavan and Mathura has been an incredible experience. The energy and enthusiasm that people have during the festival are truly infectious.”

Speaking about his Holi celebrations in Vrindavan and Mathura, Anirudh said, "Holi is a festival that brings people together, and there is no better place to celebrate it than in the birthplace of Lord Krishna. The atmosphere in Vrindavan and Mathura during Holi is simply electric, and I feel blessed to have been able to celebrate it there." The celebration was not only a chance to play with colours and enjoy the festive atmosphere but also an opportunity to reflect on the significance of Holi.

Anirudh spent two days in Vrindavan and Mathura, where he witnessed the Lathmar Holi, a traditional Holi celebration in which women playfully beat men with sticks. He also enjoyed the famous Braj ki Holi, which involves singing and dancing to devotional songs and spraying each other with coloured water and powder.

Anirudh also took the opportunity to visit the famous temples in Vrindavan and Mathura, including the Banke Bihari temple and the Sri Krishna Janmabhoomi temple. He said that the experience of visiting these temples during Holi was surreal, and it filled him with a sense of peace and serenity.

In conclusion, Anirudh's celebration of Holi in Vrindavan was a unique and unforgettable experience that allowed him to connect with India's rich cultural heritage. He hopes that his celebration will inspire others to embrace India's cultural traditions and to continue celebrating events like Holi for years to come.
