Serving America's Heroes

American heroes that have served the U.S. in the military or as first responders have stories to tell with the vision that these stories will provide hope to others, share gained insight and/or knowledge, or preserve family histories. Or, heroes can write their stories to entertain, based on a unique perspective.

Tactical 16 supports veterans in telling their stories, from sacrifices during the chaos, the humorous during tragedy, forever friendships forged during adversity, and victories, both bittersweet and glorious. These are real stories told by real people who experienced them from their unique perspectives; unvarnished, unapologetic, and passionate.

Veterans Write Their Own Stories

Tactical 16 is a full-service publisher that uses a proven approach to take veterans' personal stories, which can be written in a variety of genres, to publication. Veterans are supported with editorial and marketing services to assist with publication. A custom plan is created for each veteran to help them achieve their goal of becoming a published author.

Writing Support

Manuscript Development services are provided at any stage in story development. From a book idea to a completed manuscript, Tactical 16 offers collaborative services to review and edit the manuscript for story continuity only, and to generate a complete manuscript.

Custom Editing & Designing

Tactical 16's team of editors and designers will provide several stages of manuscript review and also will work with authors to capture their ideas for cover art and jacket copy.

Marketing & Promotion

To get the word out about your book, Tactical 16 offers a cost-efficient marketing service that will help authors get their book in front of their target audiences of readers.

"The name, Tactical 16, has two components. "Tactical" refers to the armed forces and police, fire, and rescue communities; "16" is the number of acres destroyed at Ground Zero on September 11," said Chris Schafer, U.S. Army Green Beret (retired), CEO, Tactical 16 Publishing.
