boxing icon Laila Ali and beauty mogul of Carol's Daughter, Lisa Price.

CCWC believes in leaving no woman behind; therefore, this charismatic group, led by visionary Laurie Robinson Haden, created several ways to serve and educate professionals, including:

- * Empowering events with educational programming
- * Continuing legal and continuing legal education credits
- * Job opportunities to help women of color advance in their careers
- * A safe space for networking and mentoring
- * Career and life strategies to combat and navigate systemic racism and institutional barriers

In 2004, Laurie started the organization with only ten members, but even then, she saw this day when thousands of women would be inspired and empowered to move mountains. Today, her team is finding new ways to improve the legal system while being a safe place for women attorneys to grow and engage. This National Women's History Month, the CCWC stands tall as they proudly proclaim the accomplishments of female attorneys making a difference in the world.
