How is Hair Transplant Performed in Turkey?

Hair transplant is basically an aesthetic procedure consisting of 3 stages. Before the procedure, the patient is given local anesthesia, hair follicles are taken from the donor area of the patient and hair is transplanted to the target area.

Necessary blood tests are performed on the patient before the hair transplant procedure. In blood tests, values such as the patient's blood clotting rate and blood sugar are measured. It is also examined whether the patient has viruses such as HIV and hepatitis. In Hair Center of Turkey hair restoration center, hair transplantation is performed for HIV and Hepatitis carriers. Hair transplant is performed in special rooms prepared for the patient and with disposable tools. Thus, the safety of the patient and the staff is ensured.

anesthesia is applied to the patient's scalp to make the operation painless and painless. Then hair follicles are taken from the donor area with micromotor pens. After the hair follicles are kept in special solutions for a while, the patient is transplanted.

What is FUE Hair Transplantation?

FUE hair transplant is the transplant of hair follicles from the back of the patient's head that have not fallen out and are genetically strong to the area where hair transplant will be performed. FUE by definition means follicular unit extraction. In other words, the FUE method gives us information about the removal of the hair on the back of the head. The applications used when transplanting to the front area with hair opening are methods such as DHI and FUE Sapphire.

With the FUE method, while the hair is removed from the donor, that is, the back of the head, the hair tissue with 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6 hair strands is removed with micromotor pens. The density of hair strands varies from person to person. While the donor area of some patients is more efficient, the hair follicles of some patients may not be efficient. In this case, if needed, follicles are taken from beard or chest hair. However, the hair in this area is not as preferred as the hair on the back of the head. The area behind the head is genetically strong hair that is difficult to shed. Therefore, this area is more preferred for hair transplantation.

There are 2 applications used in hair transplant. FUE Sapphire transplant method performed by inserting a sapphire tip and FUE-DHI transplant method performed without opening a channel. Hair restoration with a sapphire tip leaf much less scarring compared to transplant with metal tips. When transplanting with Sapphire Tip pens, first of all, a channel is opened in the area to be transplanted. Then, the roots are transplanted into the canals one by one with Sapphire Tip pens.

Hair Center of Turkey does not use metal-tipped pens that damage the patient's scalp in the hair transplant clinic. Instead, a safer hair transplant is performed by using transparent slits with sapphire tips that make softer incisions.

In the DHI hair restoration method, the hair taken from the donor area is placed in the Choi pen. Then direct transplant is performed without opening a channel.
