PowerCombo power strips are presumably the next-gen charging solution, combining charger and power strip. It’s an all-in-one energy center built with multiple smart protections to keep devices safe all the way, featuring AC outlets, USB-C plus USB-A ports as well as PD charging cable fitted in one pack to charge and power devices — overall redefining its kinds.

Baseus offers digital power strips in both low and high power output versions to meet specific needs of every user. The low output versions are designed to charge essential devices for daily use, whereas the high output ones provide more fast charging ports to accommodate multiple hungrier devices.

Bluetooth earbuds titled “Bowie” are relatively competitive with fine-tuned features such as providing upscaled sound quality thanks to the larger driver coils enhancing the sound, the bass and trebles. Earbuds’ ANC noise canceling goes up to -48dB which meet the highest standard while certain are powered with Baseus’ spatial audio technology developed based on professional study delivering an unparalleled in-depth listening experience, and shaped to fit snug and secure allowing users to get the most out of their investment.
