

The future of music preservation and grading is here, thanks to Tuned In Grading

Four friends' mission to 'Preserve The Music' has turned into the world's most trusted third-party record grading service, Tuned In Grading.

DALLAS, TEXAS, UNITED STATES, March 15, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Some people stumble into a record store and find exactly what they were looking for, while others find something new and unfamiliar from their traditional music taste. Regardless, you are bound to leave the store with something. For this group of friends, and the founders of Tuned In Grading, that 'something' turned into a revolutionary business idea all starting around their love for records, and the record store that sells them.

Luke Sardello, Waric Cameron, Rogers Healy, and Jeff 'Skin' Wade all come from vastly different professional backgrounds. The group has experience in venture capital, real estate, radio broadcasting, and record store entrepreneurship. However, it is their passion for music that brings them together. From owning one of the world's largest record stores, to owning one of the world's largest collections of music memorabilia, music is at the core of their passions and they are ready to preserve the music together.

It all started back when the four men realized a need to ensure that their favorite and most precious pieces of music history needed to be preserved for years to come. Their goal? Create the next record renaissance.

The record industry has seen a steady increase over the past 15 years. People are now understanding that records are the best way for an artist to deliver their art to fans. The tangible
