Santa Clara de Uchunya has plans for sustainable development through tourism and agricultural and agroforestry projects.

LIMA, LIMA, Peru, February 2, 2023 / EINPresswire.com / -- Sudaca Peru's journalists visited the Community of Santa Clara de Uchunya located in Ucayali, on the southern bank of the Aguaytía River, surrounded by rice and subsistence farming. It is a community that has changed radically 50 years after its foundation.

His newly elected officials say they have never had any help from authorities and ONGs. They indicate that in the last few years they have had the support of their neighbors, private companies, who have help them improve their roads and improve their health and education services.

Santa Clara de Uchunya has plans for sustainable development through tourism and agricultural and agroforestry projects, including the cultivation of oil palm.

Next, Sudaca Peru presents a report on the reality that the community of Santa Clara de Uchunya is going through.
