The Carpentries is the leading inclusive community for teaching data and coding skills globally.”

Cedric Chambers

By taking a sincere understanding that members of the Black and Brown community often face barriers in the job market, JUMP strives to level the playing field by providing access to resources and opportunities that may otherwise be out of reach.

Jump Recruits takes their responsibility of using technology and innovation to bridge the gap and create a more equitable future for Black and Brown talent in the workforce seriously. So much so that Jump Recruits has established their sponsorship within a mission driven non-profit organization, The Carpentries.

The Carpentries is the leading inclusive community for teaching data and coding skills globally. What exactly does that mean? The Carpentries builds global capacity in essential data and computational skills for conducting efficient, open, and reproducible research. Their teams both train and foster an active, inclusive, diverse community of learners and instructors that promotes and models the importance of software and data in research.

In short, The Carpentries continues to collaboratively develop openly-available lessons and deliver these lessons using evidence-based teaching practices. Their focus remains steady on people conducting and supporting research. With companies like Jump Recruits as active sponsors, The Carpentries is able to continue their efforts to achieve this impactful mission and vision for the future of this country's youth.

Organizations are encouraged to join The Carpentries as contributing members to support the work they're doing and have multiple ways to engage with them- whether via their social platforms, subscribing to their email newsletter, and getting in touch with their team to consider additional sponsorship opportunities. With both Jump Recruits and The Carpentries, support the communities that are breaking down barriers that previous generations faced while also paving the way for future generations to succeed.
