needs, especially in people who need help the most!"

According to recent research, programs like the Go Serve Big™ mission aren't just good for company morale but also help win customer loyalty. One study by Cone Evolution recently revealed that over 90% of consumers want to know that the companies they work with support local causes.

The real estate marketplace can be confident that YHSGR takes charitable donations seriously.

Rick continued, "Our team believes that giving starts the receiving process. Once that idea is understood, you can have everything you want in life as long as you help others get what they need. Achieving this alignment is central to our key core values."

Some of the charities being helped by the real estate team include:

- Little Smiles. Little Smiles helps children escape the reality of their harsh circumstances, if even for a day. The charity shows kids there's a reason to hope and brighter days are possible.
- Cerebral Palsy Alliance Research Foundation. CPARF is the foremost non-profit organization in the world focused on vital cerebral palsy research. The charity finds and funds the researchers working hard to help those living with CP.
- The Education Foundation. The charity works with business leaders to ensure children have all the tools, resources, and support they need to succeed in school.
- The Special Olympics. The global movement helps the disabled enjoy the transformative power of sports.
- Shriner's Children Hospital. Shriner's Children is a healthcare system that serves children with locations in three countries. They provide high-quality healthcare regardless of the economic state of the children served or their families.

The list of charities is expected to grow along with the mission.
