Lonely Sinn

Syesha Thomas founded Lonely Sinn in response to her own need for self-expression and grounding during a time of chaos. She was inspired by the power of a worry stone, which she carried with her to ease her anxiety and help her stay true to herself in a world where she felt pressured to be someone else. Lonely Sinn pendants are designed to have the same grounding effect, reminding the wearer to be true to themselves and honoring their individuality.

Since its launch, Lonely Sinn has garnered attention from NBA players, who have responded favorably to the company's unique designs and focus on sports, culture and individuality. With its patented designs and focus on self-expression and grounding, Lonely Sinn is quickly becoming a go-to brand for those who want to stay true to themselves while expressing their love of sports, culture, and individuality.

Lonely Sinn pendants are love letters to yourself, a personal message that you can carry with you."
