As a magazine it uses interviews to draw out stories that are both empowering and actionable. It adheres to the idea that good stories should feel beautiful to the mind, heart, and eyes. Authority Magazine distinguishes itself by producing large interview series with scores of experts and thought leaders, around a single empowering topic. Popular interview series include “Female Disruptors,” “Meet The Rising Stars of TV, Film, & Music,” “The Future Is Now,” “Social Impact Heroes,” “Women In Wellness,” “Five Things You Need To Be A Highly Effective Leader During Turbulent Times,” and “5 Things I Wish Someone Told Me Before I Became a CEO.” Since 2018, Authority Magazine has conducted more than 100,000 empowering interviews.

Tom Smith discussed a variety of subjects during his interview, including some of his backstory and how he got started in the air conditioning / HVAC industry, what some mistakes he made when first starting out were, and the lessons he learned from those mistakes. When discussing some of the hard times he faced when first starting out, if he ever considered giving up, and where he got the drive to continue, Tom Smith commented:

“When I started All Year Cooling and Heating, it was a challenge to get the business off the ground. We were competing with other established companies in our area, so it took time and hard work to build up our reputation. There were definitely some difficult times when we didn’t know if we would make ends meet or if we should consider giving up. But my drive kept me going even during those times of uncertainty. I knew that if I put in the work and stayed focused on providing quality service, then eventually people would recognize us and come to trust us as their go-to air conditioning company. That’s exactly what happened - slowly but surely people began to take notice of our services and now All Year Cooling and Heating is a thriving business.”

Mr. Smith went on to share a story about what he thinks makes All Year Cooling and Heating stand out from the competition, to talk about a mentor who helped him along his career journey, and also offered tips to colleagues in the air conditioning installation and service industry on how to avoid burnout. Tom Smith advised: “I would recommend that my colleagues focus on maintaining a healthy work-life balance. It’s easy to get caught up in the hustle and bustle of running a business but it’s important to make sure you’re taking time for yourself as well. Taking regular breaks, setting realistic deadlines, delegating tasks where possible, and ensuring that employees have enough resources to do their jobs effectively are all great ways to prevent burnout and create an overall healthier work environment. Additionally, it can also be helpful to set aside some time each week or month for networking events so you can stay up-to-date with industry trends and connect with other professionals in your field. These strategies have helped keep me motivated throughout my career and I’m sure they can help others as well.”

Tom Smith then differentiated between a “good” company and a “great” company as well as outlined five steps for taking a company from good to great.

“I would define a “good” company as one that is meeting its goals and providing an adequate level of customer service. In other words, it’s doing what it set out to do but without any real emphasis on going above and beyond for its clients. A “great” company, on the other hand, is one that consistently strives to exceed expectations. It goes out of its way to provide superior customer service, keeps up with industry trends, and invests in technology and innovation to stay competitive. Customers know they can always count on a great company because they are reliable and dependable when needed. Ultimately, a great company is one that is consistently delivering high-quality products or services while also taking into account the customer experience.

The five most important steps in leading a company from good to great are:

1. Invest in customer service
2. Develop effective systems
3. Stay up-to-date with industry trends
4. Foster relationships within your network
5. Innovate and stay creative

Any business owner or entrepreneur willing to put in the work and follow these steps will see positive results in the quality of their company.”

Tom Smith went on to discuss the benefits of having a purpose-driven business, what a business whose growth has plateaued can do to revive things, what companies can do to maintain growth during difficult economic conditions, and a wide range of other topics on business leadership, company growth, and advice on improving sales and customer service.
