

Actor BRIAN NORRIS Emerges on Season Two of HBO Noir Crime Drama 'PERRY MASON'

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, March 21, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Actor Brian Norris emerges during the second season of the celebrated HBO depression-era noir crime drama, PERRY MASON.

Led once again by Matthew Rhys, Juliette Rylance and Chris Chalk, the new season kicked-off months after the Dodson case has come to an end and the scion of a powerful oil family is brutally murdered. Introduced during the Chapter Ten episode, Norris steps into the storyline as 'Twist' when Perry, Della, and Paul show up at the city's Hooverilles and find themselves at the center of a case that will uncover far reaching conspiracies.

Norris was excited at the chance to be part of the series, "I've always loved film noir. I grew up watching Chinatown and LA Confidential with my parents. The chance to step into that world, built and imagined so thoroughly and beautifully, and then with actors like Matthew, Juliette, and Chris... it was a bucket list experience."

Most recently, Norris gained millions of fans recurring as the aggressive and slicky Paparazzo Felty on the ABC daytime drama General Hospital. He also notably appeared on

Up next, Norris heads to The CW for an episode of the popular action crime drama Walker; and he stars in the black-and-white Hitchcock-style indie thriller feature film Much Goes Up in Flames.
