With years of experience to his name, Henry Goudreau is a well-versed contractor. He is the brain behind HG Associates and Contractor Coaching. His innovative 'Golden Hard Hat' Mentoring Program aids contractors and other construction experts in scaling their businesses to over $1 million in revenue, all while minimizing their professional and personal burdens.

Goudreau's "Golden Hard Hat" mentoring initiative targets anyone experiencing constraining conditions in the construction business. The program is designed to aid business owners who feel overburdened with working long hours, those who sense their business has more potential but aren't sure how to unlock it, and those who wish to skyrocket their revenue.

Alongside his role as a mentor, he has penned several books, including a free-of-charge eBook entitled "The Street-Smart Contractor". This publication provides contractors with invaluable insights on how to break free from long working hours and achieve greater financial freedom.

Commercial Magazine lauds Goudreau as the preeminent coach and mentor for American entrepreneurs. His guidance has enabled his clients to achieve a collective personal net worth of more than $10 million. He only takes on those clients who are willing to put in the hard work and muster the bravery necessary to weather the highs and lows of the business world, ultimately achieving success.

"Contractors don't fail for a lack of good construction skills, They fail for a lack of good business skills!"

Henry Goudreau

As per Goudreau's observation, it's not the lack of admirable building abilities that causes contractors to falter, but rather their inadequate business acumen.

Having witnessed contractors' struggles firsthand, Goudreau has discerned that many falter due to self-imposed limitations and counterproductive behaviors. These can include overworking oneself, subsisting on meager earnings, operating on thin profit margins, taking excessive risks, living paycheck-to-paycheck, and allowing one's pride to obstruct progress.

To succeed in the contracting field, one must possess ten integral habits, all of which Goudreau has mastered.

To avoid aimless efforts, contractors must establish clear objectives. Without a defined course of action, they are prone to aimless wandering. Goals provide direction and focus, enabling individuals to concentrate on their desired outcomes. Achievers of these goals are meticulous in scrutinizing and tracking their progress, keeping their objectives front and center in their minds.
