COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO, UNITED STATES, March 23, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- STARRS (Stand Together Against Racism and Radicalism in the Services) has collected perspectives on readiness issues from active duty military and veterans about the ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). The assembled product can be found on the STARRS website. Click here.

“

Congress has taken a serious interest in recent developments that threaten our military's readiness.”

Dr. Ronald J. Scott, Jr. (Col., USAF, Ret.), President/CEO of STARRS

“The comments show CRT concerns about its advocacy and enforcement via diversity, equity, and Inclusion staff, said Dr. Ronald J. Scott, Jr. (Colonel, USAF, Retired), President and CEO of STARRS.

Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution of the United States of America charges Congress “To raise and support Armies,” ... “provide and maintain a Navy; To make Rules for the Government and Regulation of the land and naval Forces . . . .”

This is why, according to Scott, “Congress has taken a serious interest in recent developments that threaten our military's readiness.”

Today the House Military Personnel Subcommittee holds a hearing on ideology and its adverse effects on recruiting and retention. View here.

“The leaders said factors, such as lack of interest, a small percentage of the population eligible to meet accession standards, and low employment rates impacted military readiness,” Scott said.

According to Scott, Congress will need to address these developments in light of the Administration’s February Executive Order that established “equity teams” across the federal government, reporting to the White House Domestic Policy Advisor.
