WizeHive and WeHero merge for greater social impact

WeHero's curated team volunteer events deliver a powerful experiential element to clients' social impact programs.

Combining WeHero's engagement strategies and event management with WizeHive's solutions for employee donation, matching, and self-service volunteer opportunities (offered through its Bright Funds platform) will create a "giving flywheel" that can not only help increase employee giving, but also lead to stronger program participation and greater social impact and engagement benefits.

"Companies are putting a greater focus on programs that drive employee engagement through social impact, yet no single solution enables the full range of giving and volunteer opportunities in a way that drives sustained employee participation and engagement," said Carl Guarino, CEO of WizeHive. "WeHero has a reputation for delivering truly engaging and effective volunteer events. Together, WizeHive and WeHero can help clients achieve and maximize their twin objectives of employee engagement and social impact."

WizeHive has been a long-time leader in facilitating grants and other application-driven giving through its Zengine™ platform. WizeHive acquired Bright Funds in 2021, extending its solutions to include a platform that enables employee donations, employer matching, and self-service volunteer opportunities. The addition of WeHero will deepen WizeHive's total offering to corporations with a focus on driving employee engagement through curated on-site or remote volunteer experiences.

"WeHero's mission is to empower the world to change the world. We started this journey by building a world-class volunteer and engagement solution. The combination of WeHero and WizeHive will create a leading end-to-end solution for corporate giving and volunteerism empowering more companies and people to generate impact," said Ben Sampson, CEO and Co-Founder of WeHero. His Co-Founder, Andy VandenBerg, added, "We are thrilled to partner with WizeHive not only to bring a more powerful solution to clients but ultimately a seamless way to integrate and measure all of their social impact activities on one platform."
