The outbreak of coronavirus has negatively impacted the derma rollers industry along with all stages of supply chain and value chain. Presently, the supply chain is far more complex as compared to what it was a decade ago. The COVID-19 pandemic has not only hampered production facilities but also disrupted supply chains such as material suppliers and distributors of the derma rollers market globally, resulting in loss of business, in terms of value sales.

Furthermore, by distribution channel, the online store segment is anticipated to be the fastest growing segment, in terms of value sales during the forecast period. This is attributed to the fact that e-commerce is becoming a popular medium for purchase of electronic goods including derma rollers among customers. This is attributed to easy availability of derma rollers and benefits provided by these stores such as information about product functional attribute, time-saving features, and facility of home delivery to customers.
