One of the primary factors driving demand for data centre equipment is the global need to construct and renovate it. This market expansion has been further fuelled by the convergence of video, mobile, and cloud technologies which has enabled the creation of next-generation networks. Cloud computing services enable multiple operating systems to run on virtual machines, revolutionizing the market. They offer a cost-effective and efficient means of increasing efficiency while decreasing expenses. The data centre equipment market is being positively influenced by rapid infrastructure developments, the growth of end-use industries, and security measures. Over the forecast period 2023-2030, virtualization technology promises market players lucrative opportunities.

However, market growth will be hindered due to technical and physical constraints related to space, energy consumption and cooling requirements. Over the 2023-2030 forecast period, data centre equipment sales are projected to face an acute shortage of qualified personnel and resources.
