

CELEB DIVORCE ATTORNEY LAUNCHES HIGHLY INFORMATIONAL VIDEO PODCAST

TheHourGLASSpodcast Gains Popularity in Second Season; Offers Sponsorships

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, March 29, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- David J. Glass, a Certified Family Law Specialist, author and former psychologist, has successfully launched the second season of his acclaimed video podcast, TheHourGLASSpodcast: Where Family Law and Psychology Intersect with positive feedback and escalating viewership. His show is based on his book Moving On: Redesigning Your Emotional, Financial and Social Life after Divorce, according to Glass.

Launched in mid-October 2022 on Glass's YouTube channel, Apple, Spotify and Anchor, energetic and inquisitive Host Glass has interviewed divorce and breakup experts—36 interviews thus far—all of who have offered advice on a number of divorce and breakup topics. Glass kicked off the first episode with a psychologist—a specialist in how to deal with the grief that typically accompanies a breakup. He has since gone on to interview others—all experts in their respective fields. Topics such as how to redecorate your house, how to vent your anger, how to start dating, how to handle custody challenges, how to find refuge from domestic violence, commit to rehab, get help for life-ending ideation, where to move/live, how to meditate, how to sort out finances, and how to plan for a financial future, are all episodes that have been much appreciated by viewers. Glass even interviewed renowned family law court judge Isabel Cohen (ret.).

Thus far in Season Two, Glass has tackled narcissism, gaslighting, and the advent of new age divorce strategies and programs. Glass even offers episodes with a lighter touch, like his interview with the authors of "The Divorce Party Handbook," and "101 Uses for My Ex-Wife's Wedding Dress."
