velvety smooth contralto intonations that often draw comparison to Phyllis Hyman, debuts the Official Music Video of her new Single, 'Meet Me On The Moon' on March 31st.

The music video features scenes of a pas de deux ballet dance, moonscapes, a cameo appearance by trumpeter Will Allen, and endearing visuals interspersed throughout.

'Meet Me on the Moon' a classic R&B number, was written by songwriting duo Gene McDaniels and Carrie Thompson. It marks the first Phyllis Hyman cover that Cross ever recorded. The song and video pay homage to the late Ms. Hyman who Mary refers to as "a beloved rose that turned a shade of blue" (Royal Blue is the theme of the cd artwork.) The music video begins and ends with a quote dedicated to the memory and music of Ms. Hyman.

'Meet Me On The Moon' remains the most requested song during Cross' live performances. She shares, "It was a no-brainer to decide to record and dedicate the song to the memory of Ms. Hyman, as I felt a connection since my youth. 'Meet Me On The Moon' is a mood that takes music lovers back down memory lane, to a time when love was King”.

Cross' love for interpreting and delivering timeless classic lyrics coupled with elegant gowns and head pieces, capture the essence of an era long since forgotten by many of today's artists. Such fashion flair remains the focal point of every music video she has created to date. Mary adds, “there is no sensationalism for the video storyline but rather delivery of art to music lovers straight, no chaser”. Her only prerequisite: is to listen.

Meet Me On The Moon single and video is 7 minutes. Radio stations have not requested a shortened radio version - choosing instead to play it, in its entirety. Cross, an advocate for the arts, believes in expression of creativity and the great courage required to unapologetically show up every day to create and pursue one's daydream - in spite of.

"...I hear in her quality vocals such clarity that reminds me of Phyllis (Hyman), Sarah (Vaughan), Nina (Simone), Etta (James) and the songbird Minnie (Riperton), those whom I believe from the heavens give her musical interpretations a decisive endorsement of approval. Yes, Ms. Cross is a real talent, and I am blessed to have the pleasure to enjoy hearing her on this side of glory," said Orlando Chandler, who is a music lover, fan and childhood friend.
