A Terahertz Wand uses a "terahertz" frequency which sits next to Far infrared on the frequency spectrum and assist the cells to vibrate at an optimal level. The quantum scaler energy along with far infrared assist with cellular function, detoxification, circulation and rejuvenation. This is now showing itself in hundreds of documented testimonials and Terahertz Wand reviews from customers for knee pain, shoulder pain, ankle pain, back pain, neck soreness and general body soreness. In addition to being a possible remedy for aches and pain the wands also are showing to assist people with hair growth, Psoriasis, eczema and wrinkles in the skin. As the terahertz wands continue to make their way to the public so to do the number of reported benefits.

"We are seeing about 20 percent of our orders coming from existing customers which is very impressive, said marketing director Sean Callahan, "To see so many happy people referring friends and family to purchase it says a lot about their opinion of the product".

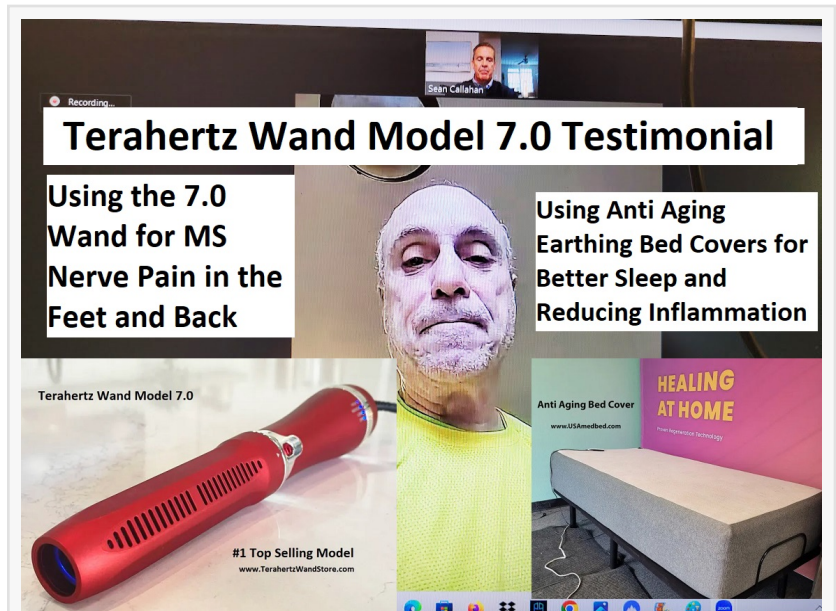

Terahertz Wands are also being referred to as a "med bed" type technology because of the quantum scaler energy and FAR infrared light frequency and its ability to penetrate eight to ten inches deep into the body. There has been much discussion about possible med beds with new start of the art technology being released to the public and although those have not surfaced yet many other technologies like Terahertz Wands are finding popularity with home owners, chiropractors, Integrative medical office, health and wellness centers, massage therapists acupuncturists and spas.

As the devices continue to make their way to the general public the list of potential benefits continues to grow.

With Terahertz Blowers prices ranging from $350 to $2,000 they are also affordable for home use and the general public.
