wide variety of learning opportunities spanning several career pathways with courses that prepare students for certification exams such as LEED Green Associate, Drone Remote Pilot, and Child Development Associate. The courses feature project-based learning, engaging video content, a variety of assessments, and interactive activities. These CTE and elective courses add to the products already available in the GMetrix catalog and expand schools' access to well-rounded content to support students' college, career, and life readiness.

“Pointful Education is an industry leader in creating quality learning products in Career and Technical Education (CTE) career clusters”, says Ben Smith at GMetrix. “This will allow customers already using the GMetrix platform to have access to additional test prep content on the GMetrix platform, to prepare candidates for the work force and aim to boost productivity.”

“GMetrix has been a long-time leader in helping students prepare for and pass certification exams,” says Steve Southwick, of Pointful Education. “With Pointful Education's unique curriculum and approach, combined with GMetrix's practice tests, students will be well-positioned to gain skills and validate that knowledge by passing relevant exams. Our partnership with GMetrix also includes Pointful courses outside of certification preparation, with topics such as STEM and electives. This will allow even greater opportunities for students to explore and prepare for a rapidly-changing economy.”
