Health insurance is a means for financing a person's health care expenses. While the majority of people have private health insurance, primarily through an employer, many others obtain coverage through programs offered by the government. Other individuals do not have health insurance at all. Health insurance is a type of insurance coverage that covers the cost of an insured individual's medical and surgical expenses. Depending on the type of health insurance coverage, either the insured pays costs out-of-pocket and is then reimbursed, or the insurer makes payments directly to the provider.

The global Health Insurance market was valued at 28700 million in 2021 and is projected to reach US$ 131620 million by 2030, at a CAGR of 24% during the forecast period.

This study mainly helps understand which market segments or Countries; Insurance carriers, and Aggregators should focus on in years to come to channel their efforts and investments in Health Related Insurance to maximize growth and profitability. The growth in 2020 is noticeably slower and mature markets in North America and Western Europe requires “heavy lifting” to address such trends due to the dynamic macroeconomic and regulatory environment.

The distribution channels in the insurance industry, are always of great importance, reflecting the “push” nature of Health Related Insurance offering in the industry. The distribution model has continued to evolve as insurers try to better connect with their customers. Over the years, the Health Related Insurance industry has seen a clear dominance of face-to-face selling (agents and brokers). However, with the increasing penetration of the Internet and customers preferring convenience, the digital mode of sales is becoming increasingly popular in Health Related Insurance.

Furthermore, the years considered for the study are as follows:

Historical year – 2018-2022

Base year – 2022

Forecast period – 2023 to 2030
