President*

Starting a business is a big decision with many risks, but it can also be a very rewarding one. If you have an excellent idea for a product or service and are willing to work hard, you can build a successful business that generates a steady income stream.

On the downside the mortality rate of business failures is high about 20% of companies fail within the first year, and 50% fail within the first five years. This means that only 30% of companies survive past the five-year mark.

How do we overcome this devastating statistic? Firstly, it is important to understand why businesses fail (identify the root cause of failure) and then develop a strategic business plan to combat against high business mortality rate. This eBook give you a step-by-step process on how to succeed in business.

The FREE eBook - How to Build a Money-Making Businesses covers a wide range of topics, including:

- Coming up with a great idea
