factors projected to support market revenue growth between 2021 and 2028. In addition, increasing geographical conflicts will continue to boost revenue growth of the market. In all areas, except Africa, conflict intensity in 2020 was slightly lower than in 2019. Despite the worldwide COVID-19 pandemic, some conflicts continued unabated. Geographical conflicts and use of Unmanned Manned Vehicles (UAVs) and drones is expected to increase adoption of electromagnetic weapons among military forces in countries across the globe, which in turn is expected to boost revenue growth of the market in the near future.

However, limitations of anti-personnel high-powered microwaves and challenges in developing military-grade electromagnetic weapon systems are expected to hamper market revenue growth during the forecast period.

Weapons that strike and harm their targets using electromagnetic radiation or charged particles are known as electromagnetic weapons. They can be divided into two main groups: electromagnetic pulse (EMP) weapons and directed energy weapons.

Directed energy weapons (DEWs) cripple or obliterate their targets by using concentrated electromagnetic energy beams. These beams could be high-powered microwaves, high-energy lasers, or particle beams. DEWs have a number of uses, including the destruction of electronic equipment, the blinding of sensors or cameras, the destruction of structures or vehicles, and even the death of people.
