DARKMATTER expands its global distribution network of high-quality blunt force and ballistic trauma protection for law enforcement and military personnel.

ROCHESTER, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, April 11, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- MONARC

We look forward to applying our expertise and vast network of commercial distributors to support DARKMATTER with this vital modernization program for the Latin American military and security forces.”

Mike Pizarro - CEO, CONTROL LOGISTICO

Holdings, a global company that develops solutions to protect people, places, and things, has contracted CONTROL LOGISTICO CONSULTING GROUP to lead sales distribution efforts for DARKMATTER™ Energy Dispersal Pads in Latin America.

DARKMATTER is committed to providing the highest level of trauma protection to law enforcement and military personnel around the world, and this new partnership is a significant step towards achieving that goal.

"We are thrilled to partner with CONTROL LOGISTICO to bring our products to customers in Latin America," said Joe

Cufari, CEO of MONARC Holdings, parent company of DARKMATTER. "Our energy dispersal pads are designed to provide superior protection against blunt force and ballistic trauma, and we are confident that our new partnership will help us reach more customers and make a positive impact on the safety of law enforcement and military personnel in the region."

The new partnership will expand DARKMATTER's reach in the Latin American market and enable customers in Latin America to easily access DARKMATTER pads through local channels, reducing shipping times and costs.

"We look forward to applying our expertise and vast network of sales agents, channel partners and commercial distributors to support DARKMATTER with this vital modernization program for the Latin American military and security forces," said Jose Miguel "Mike" Pizarro, CEO of CONTROL LOGISTICO. "The immediate activation of a robust network of in-country commercial distributors will allow local agents to quickly conduct face-to-face field presentations directly to end users."
