generation such as solar energy and wind energy in order to reduce the emission levels and enhance the quality of air is anticipated to drive the growth of the segment.

A form of renewable energy called wind energy uses the wind's energy to produce electricity. The kinetic energy of the wind is captured and turned into electrical energy by wind turbines, which are tall towers with broad blades. A generator is turned by the moving blades, and the electricity it generates can be utilised to power homes, companies, and even cities.

The emergence of technologically advanced platforms, powered by Artificial Intelligence and machine learning, helps users control their energy and reduce the risks by giving prior information about system failures. The increasing investments in the research & development for the production of technologically advanced solar and wind power generation resulted in the cost-effectiveness of the systems. Technological advancements in the wind turbines have resulted in the increased capacity of the wind turbines, reduced the weight of the wind turbine parts, and made the blades stronger and more durable, which has increased the demand for the wind energy system.
