Jay Shah, the co founder and CEO of Marigold Academy talked about the reasons he and his wife founded the brand and are now launching it as a franchise, Shah said: “As working professionals, we needed high-quality childcare for our own children, and we immediately began searching for a perfect childcare program for our children. After visiting more than half a dozen established schools, we quickly realized we needed a loving, nurturing, and high-quality program to prepare our children for kindergarten and beyond. We wanted an environment that not only enriches our children's socio-emotional skills but also provides an environment where they can develop their curiosity and appetite to learn and explore, socialize with other children, and make friends.”

□Promotes Learning From an Early Age

□The curriculums of Marigold Academy are thematically based and encompass the major areas of development, incorporating many different media and materials to help students understand their external, inner, social and intellectual selves. The program is designed for small group learning with large group reinforcement whereby concentration capacities, self-esteem and self-discipline skills are fostered through appropriate curriculum

A Long History of Being a “Home Away from Home”
