NEW YORK, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, April 11, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Marsha Gay Reynolds, MPH, Managing Director of Home Healthcare Agency, explained today the available home healthcare services.

Marsha Gay Reynolds said home healthcare could provide a wide range of services, depending on the patient's needs. She noted that some of the most common types of home healthcare services include:

Marsha Gay Reynolds, MPH

Skilled nursing: Registered and licensed practical nurses provide this type of care. Professional nursing services include bathing, dressing, grooming, medication management, and wound care.

Physical therapy: This type of care is provided by physical therapists. Physical therapy can help patients regain strength, range of motion, and balance.

Occupational therapy: This type of care is provided by occupational therapists. Occupational therapy can help patients with activities of daily living, such as cooking, cleaning, and bathing.

Speech therapy: This type of care is provided by speech-language pathologists. Speech therapy can help patients with communication, swallowing, and eating.

Personal care: This type of care is provided by home health aides. Private care can include bathing, dressing, grooming, meal preparation, and light housekeeping.

Marsha Gay Reynolds said home healthcare could be a valuable option for people who need care but feel more comfortable at home. She noted that home healthcare could help people maintain their independence, improve their quality of life, and reduce their risk of hospitalization.

"Home healthcare is a growing industry, and it's important for people to understand the different types of available services," said Marsha Gay Reynolds. "If you or a loved one is considering home healthcare, talk to your doctor or a home healthcare agency to learn more about your options."
