testing platform, is excited to announce a strategic partnership with Testhouse Ltd, a global independent software testing and quality engineering company. This partnership aims to combine the strengths of both companies, delivering a seamless and comprehensive testing experience for businesses in the GCC, UK and Middle East regions.

Avinash Tiwari, Co-founder of pCloudy, said, "We are thrilled to join forces with Testhouse, a renowned leader in the software testing and quality engineering domain. This collaboration brings together our innovative cloud-based testing platform and Testhouse's extensive experience, empowering businesses to achieve higher levels of quality and user satisfaction. We believe that this partnership will enable us to provide even better solutions to our clients and expand our market reach together."

George Ukkuru, Chief Solutions Officer, commented. "Collaborating with pCloudy is a major achievement for us, as it is in line with our goal of enhancing the digital experience for end-users. We are confident that our joint expertise will enable businesses to enhance their overall test coverage, shorten time-to-market, and enhance the end-user experience. We eagerly anticipate working in close collaboration with pCloudy to provide unmatched digital assurance services to our clients worldwide."

This strategic partnership leverages pCloudy's advanced cloud-based testing platform and Testhouse's in-depth experience in software testing and quality engineering. One of the key aspects of this collaboration is the mutual expansion into new markets. Testhouse's strong presence in the Middle East, US, UK, and Australia will help pCloudy further solidify its global reach.

In addition to market expansion, the partnership also focuses on the joint development of new testing methodologies, sharing of industry best practices, and co-hosting webinars and workshops to educate businesses on the latest trends and innovations in the digital testing landscape.

Together, pCloudy and Testhouse are committed to revolutionizing digital testing and quality assurance, ultimately helping more businesses deliver unparalleled value to their customers around the world.
