The Global Meal Kits Market size is expected to be worth around USD 55.4 Bn by 2032 from USD 14.8 Bn in 2022, growing at a CAGR of 14.5% during the forecast period from 2023 to 2032.

The meal kit market is a growing industry that provides customers with pre-measured ingredients and recipes to cook their own meals at home. Meal kits offer convenience, time-saving, and the ability to cook a variety of meals without the need to shop for groceries or plan meals. The COVID-19 pandemic has accelerated the growth of the market, as more consumers turned to meal kits as a safer and more convenient option for meal preparation. The market is highly competitive, with a large number of players ranging from small startups to large retailers and food companies. Blue Apron, HelloFresh, and Home Chef are some of the largest meal kit companies in the US, while global players include Marley Spoon, Sun Basket, and Gousto.

Meal kits are offered in a variety of formats, including subscription-based models, on-demand delivery, and in-store pickup. The majority of meal kits are sold online, but some retailers have also begun to offer meal kits in-store. In addition to traditional meal kits, the market has also seen the emergence of specialized meal kits catering to specific dietary preferences such as vegan, vegetarian, gluten-free, and keto.
