CGTN Europe's awards

Silver award: RAZOR - Restoring the urban microbiome

Our 30 minute, award-winning documentary, explores how our urban landscapes have become increasingly sanitized and less biodiverse. The result is a depletion of microbes, which is having a negative impact on human health.

Our reporter, Guy Henderson headed to Amsterdam, which is home to the world's first microbe zoo, to find out more about this invisible world and its importance in order to create thriving urban spaces and safeguard our health.

Bronze award: Secret Betrayal

Chinese seamen played a pivotal role in Britain's battle to defeat Germany in the Second World War. But after the war was over, those same Chinese heroes were treated with disdain by the British government, who ordered them to leave the country and return to their homeland.

The seamen were removed secretly and forcibly under the cover of darkness, leaving children without fathers and families without answers as to the disappearance of their loved ones. In this documentary, we spoke to the families who are still searching for answers.
