Typically, asbestos exposure will have occurred sometime between the 1950s and the 1980s. Some of the most prevalent professions that encountered large quantities of asbestos include power plant workers, maritime workers, industrial workers, plumbers, pipefitters, electricians, mechanics, machinists, miners, railroad workers and construction workers, to name a few. Since the latency period for mesothelioma patients is approximately 40 years, most people diagnosed with mesothelioma or asbestos-related lung cancer in 2023 were exposed decades ago. Although Indiana does not contain any naturally-occurring asbestos deposits, numerous industries within the state used an abundance of asbestos-containing materials for a majority of the twentieth century. As a result, professional asbestos abatement specialists should be consulted prior to any new construction or demolition projects in the state. Residents of Indiana who worked in the oil, shipping, steel and energy industries are at an elevated risk of developing
