The company now brings the Mexican Chocolate 12 ct. K-Cup for those looking for fresh and the right amount of coffee.

Invader Coffee's K-Cups are different because they feature a "sphere-shaped" grind in all of its coffee K-Cups as opposed to the traditional "jagged grind" that other coffee brands use in their K-Cups. The sphere shape enables the water to pass through the K-Cup more effortlessly, resulting in a bolder cup of coffee with 20-25% more caffeine per serving. "If you are looking for the best K-Cup coffee, consider trying this product. We assure you a taste you will never forget. Our K-cups come with fresh coffee, but feel free to explore our website to learn more about it and other blends we offer," the company's rep stated.

"Also note that there is no alcohol and sugar in our Mexican Chocolate Coffee blend, just pure, delicious Mexican chocolate taste that would make abuelita proud," the rep added.
