Bosco+ partnering with MLB hitting coaches to produce new docuseries for instructional youth hitting series

BELLFLOWER, CA, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, April 24, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Following

When I was a young MLB-hopeful, I would've loved to have access to a MLB hitting coach. With this series, we're able to make that happen for kids all over the world."

Jeremy Reed

the launch of their new streaming network, Bosco+, St. John Bosco High School is set to begin rolling out original content, starting with "Study Hall with Jeremy Reed and Matt Spring." St. John Bosco continues to lead the way in shaping the future of high school media, providing unique learning opportunities to not only their students, but to the masses across the whole world.

Scholar Holdings, a joint venture between St. John Bosco and Envoi, will produce and distribute the series for Bosco+. Envoi was selected by St. John Bosco to provide the underlying cloud computing technology platform and content distribution network that powers Bosco+. St. John Bosco's partnership with For a Bright Future Foundation brought a brand-new, state-of-the-art multimedia and content production lab to their campus, as well as a curriculum that will enable St. John Bosco students to produce original content like this in the future. Students will have the opportunity to assist in the production of "Study Hall," with wages provided by Scholar Holdings.

"We're excited to partner with world-class hitting experts to provide this opportunity for baseball players. Jeremy and Matt utilize a modern hitting instruction/teaching philosophy which I have personally seen resonate with young people better than ever before. This falls in line with everything we try to do at St. John Bosco High School to inspire students to continue down a path of excellence in whatever they want to do," said Dr. Brian Wickstrom, President & CEO at St. John Bosco.

Jeremy Reed and Matt Spring are both former MLB hitting coaches and analysts that have worked with the best players in the world. Jeremy Reed was drafted by the Chicago White Sox in the 2002 MLB draft and went on to play professionally until 2013. After retiring, he started his career as a major league hitting coach and analyst. He was the Head Hitting Coach for the Los Angeles Angels from 2019-2022. Matt Spring was drafted by the Tampa Bay Rays in the 2004 draft. He went on to play 12 professional seasons with the Rays and Red Sox. After retiring, he spent 5 years as a MiLB hitting coach and 2 years as a MLB hitting analyst.

With a passion for teaching young athletes the true principles of the swing, Reed and Spring will present a unified approach to hitting that provides the same principles a professional athlete would use but is specifically tapered to amateur players.

"When I was a young MLB-hopeful, I would've loved to have access to a MLB hitting coach. With this series, we're able to make that happen for kids all over the world. I wish I knew these principles throughout my entire playing days, including my professional career. Because of what I've learned as a professional hitting analyst and coach, I know now what I was naturally good at. I also know what was negatively coached out of me. When you understand your principles, you'll be able to tweak and adjust your pattern when your swing is off, all while staying within your keys. These principles will help unlock 'your' swing," said Jeremy Reed.

Production is set to begin April 30th. The docuseries is set to be released this summer. Pricing and episode information will be available in the coming weeks.
