Millennials are considered to be most tech savvy and thus support the growth of the online delivery of alcohol market. Moreover, changes in lifestyle and rapid urbanization influence the Millennials and youth to consume alcohol beverages and as they are also inclined toward using online buying site the online selling of alcohol drinks and beverages has been increased. The increase in the consumption of alcohol beverages in the developed and developing countries also propels the growth of the online delivery of alcohol.

Legal compliance is the major challenge for the companies operating in this market. There are strict regulations linked with the alcohol product and it is also banned in some of the countries and states. For instance, in India the legal rules regarding online alcohol delivery services and the age for age classification of buyers who can order alcohol online is not clear creating hindrance for the market players. One more challenge is that the government is also levying heavy taxes on the liquor selling companies.
