Guide4SeniorLiving.com, an online database of elderly care resources, will sponsor the new event in tandem with O'Fallon's own FasterHouse. The two companies have partnered with the aim of sharing senior living details that are pertinent to the local community on a wider scale, hoping to benefit seniors and caregivers alike.

At the scheduled expo, vendors will be on hand to hold talks on prominent points of note for the senior care industry. The event sponsors say that covered material will include important announcements and info related to senior housing, senior care and services, and health and wellness.

As such, the event promises to serve as a venue for seniors to learn about the care homes and housing communities that O'Fallon has to offer. The hosts advise that seniors and vulnerable individuals can learn how to improve their quality of life with the support of local businesses in O'Fallon and elsewhere in the St. Louis area.

In addition, caregivers visiting the event will share tips on senior health and wellness, providing families with the information they need to help their loved ones achieve healthier lifestyles. Contact listings for health professionals will also be available, giving the elderly a chance to connect with experienced individuals and organizations across a variety of wellness roles.
