VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA, May 3, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Otto Studio has launched its latest in a series of exclusive artist collaborations, a capsule collection of renter-friendly, peel-and-stick wallpaper and decal designs created with Vancouver-based artist Tierney Milne. Otto Studio is a women-owned, Vancouver-based business founded in 2021 with the mission of helping renters and homeowners find joy in their space. Their unique in-house designs and artist capsule collections are removable, repositionable, and are printed and shipped right from Vancouver, British Columbia. They have been featured in Wall Street Journal, Apartment Therapy, Design Milk and more.

This new capsule collection features Tierney's take on the maximalist style that Otto is known for. "Nostalgic play, bold shapes, and geometric structure are the biggest things that drive my art and this capsule collection," says artist, Tierney Milne. "Kaleidoscopic shapes and arrays of simple forms have been pieced together in various compositions and scales, each with their own amount of playfulness or sophistication depending on the colourway." Perfect for adding colour and joy to any home, retail, or office space. But it's not all bombastic fever dreams.

Continues Tierney: "I was so excited to include modernized organic textured designs that really speak to nostalgic touchstones from my childhood and the Vancouver greenery around me. While I am drawn primarily to gem-tones and retro pops of saturation, the collection also includes more muted and calming colourways to give as much range as possible to mix and match and choose which colours bring others the most joy."

This is the most recent capsule collection in the Otto Studio lineup, with previous entries from

"I LIKE TO THINK OF EMPTY WALLS AS I WOULD A BLANK PAGE," SAYS THE VANCOUVER-BASED MURALIST."

Tay BeepBoop, Dani Klarić, McKenzie Parrott, and Zoe Schlacter already making an impact on walls around the world. "Otto Studio's dedication to curated capsule collections, working with artists they align with creatively, and using super high-quality materials in their vinyl prints all work together to help differentiate them from competitors I've seen." When Otto Studio floated the idea of a collab, it was an easy decision. "It was an immediate yes for me when the opportunity came up. The chance to design wallpaper patterns for others to bring into their homes and spaces excites me so much."

"We're seeing people really wanting to bring fun, colour and playfulness into their spaces – and removable wallpaper is the perfect, low-commitment solution no matter if you own or rent." says Jen Cook, co-founder of Otto Studio.

When she isn't travelling the world painting the sides of buildings, Tierney makes art in a co-working space in the Olympic Village neighbourhood of Vancouver; it's a supportive, creative environment where artists help each other toward greater artistic achievement. "The community fostered in the studio and the level to which we all support each other through our individual creative efforts is something I've come to realize is fairly rare and it is something that continues to push me to grow and take risks that I wouldn't feel confident about solo." Tierney's advice for up-and-coming artists: "Know your worth and always create things that you yourself would love to see and be around."

About Otto Studio

Founded by Jen Cook and Hannah Lee, Otto Studio has one goal: to bring bold, maximalist wallpaper designs to extraordinary people who want to transform their homes into spaces as unique as they are, regardless of whether they rent or own. Otto Studio wallpaper is thick, luscious, and textured like traditional wallpaper, but it's peel-and-stick and comes off without leaving a mark, unlike Jen and Hannah, who are leaving their mark on the design industry as innovative women entrepreneurs.
