Premier League Predictions for This Week 18 — Matchday 35 Roundup

Before diving into our Premier League predictions for this week 18, a quick look at the top of the table shows Arsenal and Manchester City are still the top contenders for the Premier League title. Of course, if Man City's recent round 33 thrashing of Arsenal in Manchester City vs Arsenal is anything to go by, the smart money would be on Manchester City.

In contention for the next spots, we have Newcastle and Manchester United locked in a tense battle for third place, while Tottenham is looking less likely to qualify for the top four. Liverpool is still in the running, while Chelsea is not.

Southampton, Leicester City, and Everton are currently in the relegation zone, but the bottom of the table is very tight. And while Crystal Palace, Bournemouth, and Wolves have moved clear of the bottom three, West Ham, Leeds, and Nottingham Forest are still in danger.

NOTTINGHAM VS SOUTHAMPTON PREDICTION

Nottingham Forest has had a decent season so far, even if they suffered 11 defeats and 8 draws in 25 games.

Southampton is struggling this season and is in danger of being relegated. Nottingham Forest won their previous game against Southampton with a 1-0 scoreline. Nottingham Forest has a higher chance of winning or drawing the upcoming match against Southampton according to our predictions for this week 18. The prediction for the Nottingham vs Southampton match is a 1-1 draw or a home win for Nottingham Forest with a score of 1-0.

MANCHESTER CITY VS LEEDS PREDICTION

Manchester City is still hoping to defend their title, and the match against Leeds is a good opportunity for them to keep three more points at home.

Leeds has been struggling and fighting for their survival, with 13 defeats and 40 goals conceded in 25 games. In their most recent match, Manchester City won comfortably against Leeds, with 69% possession and 87% passing accuracy. Our predictions for this week 18 show that the upcoming match between Everton and Manchester City, and Leeds vs Newcastle, will likely have complications for the Peacocks.

The prediction for Manchester City vs Leeds is 4-1, with Manchester City expected to win due to their superior form and Leeds' struggles.
