The company, based out of Gun Barrel City, is seeking to add more franchise locations throughout Texas, beginning with Houston, El Paso, and Corpus Christi. “

Our franchisees will be set up with everything they need to grab a hold of this niche and increase the revenue of their existing business.”

Scott Montgomery, Owner

Scott Montgomery, who owns the company with Chad Montgomery, is urging those who already own a plumbing business or who have extensive industry knowledge to connect with the Accurate Leak and Line team and learn more at the outset of the sales rollout.

“We have an incredibly recession-resistant opportunity here and have dialed in every process for slab leak detection, trenchless plumbing diagnostics, and conventional underground plumbing repairs,” said Scott Montgomery. “Our franchisees will be set up with everything they need to grab a hold of this niche and increase the revenue of their existing business.”

The company takes its franchisees through a comprehensive training program which covers all processes and procedures, from onboarding new staff to new business development. Ongoing operational support, marketing guidance, and presence on the corporate site are also included.

"Franchisees are getting a fantastic opportunity within a segment of the industry that doesn't have a refined brand presence yet. Our goal is to be the face of pipe infrastructure rehabilitation for sewer and water piping systems here in the US," said Montgomery. "This is a great business to get into because it combines strong profitability with cost-saving solutions for the property owners that a franchisee can feel great about providing."
