Barak Zilberberg, a lifelong Republican, is out to change the party and move it forward.

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA, UNITED STATES, May 5, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- With the presidential election not far off, people are beginning to form opinions about the people and parties running. One person they will want to consider for the position is Barak Zilberberg, who is announcing his presidential run for the 2024 election. He has made his candidacy official and is turning heads with where he stands on some issues.

"I've been a Republican my entire life, and I love what it stands for, but we have to take a better stand on some of the positions," explains Barak Zilberberg. "We must lead with compassion and commitment and put the people of our great country first. It's time to set the pettiness and divisiveness aside to do what is best for the country as a whole."

He's unafraid to take on challenges and always ready to hear people out, despite their differences. He's someone who can bring the parties together, which will help the country get back on track and unified again.

Zilberberg's position on the most popular issues helps him stand out among Republican party nominations. He supports the LGBTQ community, believes the country should be pro-choice, and would push to legalize cannabis federally.
