CFP Patricia Stallworth's Latest Book Offers Women a Step-by-Step Guide To Take Control of Their Money

IRVINE, CA, UNITED STATES, May 10, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- "Financial education is often not taught in schools, as a result, many women are left to learn money lessons on their own through trial and error, and in some cases, error and error," according to financial expert and Certified Financial Planner (CFP) Patricia Stallworth – "I see women making the same mistakes with their money over and over again. I've been there too and I know how defeated it can make you feel when your hard work gets you no closer to your goals," she said.

In fact, she says losing all of her money because she lacked the skills to manage it was the main reason she left a business career to start one in personal finance more than 20 years ago.

In her latest book, Become a Money Wise Woman in 6 Simple Steps: Even if You Suck at Math, Stallworth walks the reader through six steps from understanding your money story to creating a master plan to achieve financial independence.
